

Autoist at Chippewa Falls Goes Over Embankment into River— Was Not Hurt.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chippewa Falls, Wis., June 1.—Olaf Oger had a miraculous escape from death in going in an automobile over a sixty-foot embankment into Duneau creek. He escaped without a bruise and the machine was badly battered, but was going up hill when the machine became unmanageable and dashed to the side of the road and over the embankment. The fact that the machine was going up hill kept him close to the cushion and probably saved his life. The water in the creek was eight feet deep.

JANESVILLE HAS AN EVEN BREAK

LOST SATURDAY'S GAME TO BELLOIT BY CLOSE SCORE.

Janesville and Beloit are again tied for first place in the Trolley League. Beloit won Saturday's game and took the lead for a few hours, but by being defeated Sunday by Harvard and Janesville winning from Rockford on the same day the two teams are again tied for stellar honors. Saturday's game was a heart-breaker for the fans. Beloit had the lead all through. Scoring three runs early in the game, Janesville was forced to content itself with goose eggs until the ninth, when a rally was made too late to even the score but for a few minutes it had the Line City boys scared when Sullivan scored on a two-base hit by Ward and Ward crossed the plate on an infield hit by Miller. Then the game ended and Beloit had won 3 to 2.

Sunday's Game

Sunday's game was better for the fans to witness. For eight innings pitcher Stoll, who lives near Elkhor and played last year in the Ohio state league with the Dayton team. He held the Rockford team down so that not a player reached first base. It was a wonderful exhibition and appreciated by fans who enjoy a good hard game. Meanwhile Janesville was piling up scores and when the game was over had a clean sheet with five runs, six hits and no errors. Rockford had one run, one hit and three errors. Stoll is a find and will be kept in the game. Manley may leave to join the Riverbats in the Chicago semi-professional league. One of the amusing bits of play was when Sullivan of the Rockfords tried to catch Place napping at third. Place managed to put the Indian sign on Miller Sullivan to such an extent that he threw to second, where a dancing image in the Janesville uniform stood, Place scoring.

Beloit Lost
Beloit's pride was humbled by the players from Harvard. Feeling big over their victory of Saturday over Janesville they pictured on Harvard as an easy mark only to be trimmed by a score of 1 to 2. The joke of the whole thing was the work of Carl Tows, a "phenom" that Beloit has been keeping up the score for this Sunday game. Grady worked well in practice, but alas and alack, he went to pieces when he began playing and Harvard had eight big juicy hits in one inning of his delivery. For Harvard, Frieling, a former Wisconsin state pitcher, pitched excellent ball.

Red Sox Lost
Woodstock proved too strong an aggregation for the Red Sox to cope with Saturday. They were defeated in a heart-breaking game by a score of six to two. No game was scheduled for Sunday and before the next game it is said the team will be reorganized and strengthened in several weak spots.

SEASON OPENED BY SINNISSIPPI CLUB

Nearly Two Hundred Participated in Festivities at the Links on Memorial Day.

Members and visitors numbering nearly two hundred participated in the festivities incident to the opening of the Sinnissippi Golf club season on Saturday. Miss Elizabeth Schleker and John G. Rexford and Miss Isabel MacLean and William G. Wheeler were tied for first place in the mixed foursomes, making the flight in the forenoon, while ideal weather conditions prevailed. In 58. Fortune favored the latter pair in playing off the tie. Mrs. W. G. Wheeler and Mrs. H. G. Carter captured the trophies in the ladies' putting contests and the honors at bridge-whist were taken by Mrs. J. P. Baker and Miss Grace Valerius. Luncheon was served to a goodly number at noon and Monroe Arnold, the new chef, with the assistance of some of the club members, prepared an excellent supper for 100 in the evening. Under the direction of the house committee, which consists of Mrs. F. H. Farnsworth, Mrs. John G. Rexford, Miss Vera Wilson, William Roger, Jr., and Henry Carpenter, portions of the club house, the electric lighting and the system of electric lighting installed throughout. President W. G. Wheeler, in a brief address immediately following the supper, outlined the plans for the year and informed the members regarding the condition of the treasury and the character of the effort which would be necessary to make the season a successful one. Carter & Gray's orchestra provided the inspiration for the first of the weekly dancing parties and the day's entertainment closed just before midnight.

As in the past, each Tuesday is to be club day. The first of a series of bridge parties for the ladies will be inaugurated tomorrow forenoon, with a luncheon served at noon. On the following Tuesday the weekly dancing parties will be resumed. The house committee has already earned the gratitude of the members for the perfection of Saturday's arrangements and appointments and with favorable weather conditions the 1908 season will undoubtedly be the most successful ever enjoyed by the club.

Among the Memorial Day visitors were: J. G. Orchard of Exton, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. David Holmes; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hamkey of the South Shore Country Club, Chicago, a guest of George Kimball; Hugh Laidton of Portland, Me., a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Harris; and Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Jeffers of Chicago.

MUCH GOOD RESULTS FROM THE APPEALS

Associated Charities Acknowledge Receipt of Many Cash Donations Recently.

That the people of Janesville have confidence in the ladies of the Associated Charities and their work is shown by the generous response to our article in last Saturday's Gazette. Packages of dainty baby clothing, children's suits, dresses, have been sent to Helmsseed's drug store in response to the requests sent out, and there are a few who have always responded to any call made for charity or any other good work with cash contributions. Mrs. Hiram Merrill, five dollars; Mrs. P. F. Stevens, five dollars; Arthur J. Harris, five dollars; and L. B. Carle, twenty-five dollars. The above donations will prove a great help in caring for emergency cases this summer, but the ladies want to get a good stock of clothing for fall and winter, and ask that every one will contribute a little, and in this way when the cold weather comes they will be prepared. There are but few families in the city but what can spare a little and it will all count. Goods of any kind can be sent to Helmsseed's drug store, where they will be taken care of. The proceeds of the city have generously offered to have their wagons take down anything you may wish to donate.

Five Athletes to Represent Local School at Big Intercollegiate Meet.

On Saturday, June 6, the annual intercollegiate track meet occurs at Camp Randall, Madison, under the auspices of the University Athletic association. Janesville will be represented this year by a team of five athletes, who give promise of bringing home points for the local school. Asplawell, a promising runner, is entered for the dashes and should show up well towards the front in both the hundred- and two-hundred-yard dashes. Cunningham will negotiate the 440-yard dash and Koch is entered for the 440 and 220 hurdles. In the weights Woodward and Church will take care of the discus, hammer and shot-put. On Saturday Asplawell won the twenty-dash at the intercollegiate meet at Elgin, making it in slow time owing to the heaviness of the track. Church failed to get a point in the weights owing to fumbling.

GAVE BANQUET LAST SATURDAY EVENING

Philatelic Society of the High School Held Their Annual Commemorative Banquet.

One of the first of the graduation festivities at the high school came on Saturday night last when the Philatelic society held their annual banquet at the high school building. The society is composed of young ladies whose scholarship is above eighty-five in all their studies and is open only to members of the sophomore, junior and senior classes. The affair was quite pretentious and the menu served was all prepared by the members themselves. Covers were laid for one hundred and fifty invited guests, together with the members of honorary members, enjoyed the banquet and the post-prandial that followed.

One of the pretty features of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful luncheon given to Miss Grace Mout, the critic of the society, by the members of the society. The room was tastefully decorated with streamers of red and gold, the colors of the society, and the same color scheme was carried out in the table decorations. Place cards, dainty place cards, made in pen and ink, by the members, marked each seat. Miss Nellie Dawson acted as toastmistress and the following program was rendered and toasts responded to:

FRANK BOSTWICK GIVEN PROMOTION

SON OF J. M. BOSTWICK OF THIS CITY, ORDERED TO SAN FRANCISCO.

TO COMMAND BUFFALO

Sail for Panama on the Seventh of the Present Month—Vessel an Auxiliary Cruiser.

Word was received this morning by J. M. Bostwick, in a letter from his son, Commander Frank Bostwick, U. S. N., that he had been ordered to report at San Francisco, California, at once for service as commander of the auxiliary cruiser Buffalo, with orders to proceed to Panama, sailing from Prince on June 7th. For two years past Commander Bostwick has been in charge of the 10th District of Lighthouses with headquarters at Buffalo and he turns over his command there this morning, leaving tonight for Chicago, where he will spend Tuesday, and proceeding to San Francisco to arrive there on the fifth. Mr. J. M. Bostwick will go down to Chicago this evening to spend tomorrow with him.

Rapid Promotion
Commander Bostwick's new command, the Buffalo, is one of the five auxiliary cruisers in the United States navy, the Buffalo, Panther, Grifone and Yavon being the other four. Its keel was laid in 1892; it has six thousand tons displacement; its speed is registered at fourteen and five-tenths knots per hour, and its engines are 3,600-horsepower. It was one of the most expensive of the auxiliary cruisers and cost $375,000 when built. Its main batteries consist of two five-inch and six four-inch rapid fire guns and its secondary battery is composed of two 6mm Colts and six 30s.

Important Vessels.
The Buffalo is a converted gun boat and is used along the Pacific coast where ever needed. Its new station will be Panama from which point it can reach most of the South American coast line with ease, should it be needed. For some time past it has been on unassigned or special service and in 1907 was commanded by Commander Charles E. Ford. Since the opening of the work in Panama it has been in to protect the interests of the United States along a large portion of the Pacific coast.

Important Services.
Commander Bostwick entered the naval academy at Washington when he was sixteen and graduated four years later, taking the regulation two years cruise before being assigned to a vessel. He has served with distinction in the naval survey of Chinese coast and for several years was commander in charge of the Puget Sound naval station at Bremerton, Washington. For the past two years he has had charge of the district No. 10 of the United States Light House districts, with headquarters at Buffalo. His next step up will be to the rank of Captain. His present commander rank as compared with that of an army officer is Lieutenant Colonel.

Home Work in Numbers.
I am a primary teacher, and find that many otherwise bright children are slow in numbers. I have obtained good results in many cases by recommending number games at home, making at the same time a strong stand against home tasks.
A box of "pasteboard money" is very good for playing store. The little storekeeper will enjoy making change immensely, and will take pains that he neither cheats nor is cheated. Bean bag games, where a score is kept by each child, are also useful. The old-fashioned way of playing dominoes, counting by the multiples of five, is very fascinating to the average child, who at the same time unconsciously acquires a good foundation for formal number lessons in school.—Harper's Bazar.

THE STOLEN HORSE.
An Old Proverb With a New Application.
The woods are full of "so-called" remedies for Baldness. You may call anything in creation a remedy, but to use them is like locking the stable after the horse is stolen. Baldness and Dandruff are caused by a germ—if you don't kill the germ the germ will kill the hair. Scientists have labored with the problem of a preventative for Baldness for many years. Newbro's Herpicide is the product of a modern idea, and will cure Dandruff and prevent Baldness because germs cannot exist when you apply Herpicide. Herpicide is a valuable hair dressing and scalp disinfectant as well as a cure for Dandruff. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. J. P. LONG FIGHT FOR FREEDOM AT END

YAGUI NATION IS ABOUT TO SEVER TRIBAL RELATIONS.

WILL SUBMIT TO MEXICO

Indians, Overcome in Murderous Struggle for Their Rich Valley, Accept Final Terms of Peace.

Hermosillo, Sonora, Mex., June 1.—After a war which has continued intermittently for more than 120 years, the Yaqui nation, as a nation, is about to enter the throes of dissolution, to sever tribal relations, and its members are to settle down into peaceable and law-abiding citizens.

Originally numbering 20,000 or more people, they have never yet acknowledged the authority of the Mexican government, but the end is fast coming and the Yaqui nation will soon be a thing of the past.

Although Christianized by the Spanish fathers, they steadfastly refused to accept the dominion of Spain; and as soldiers, in the revolutionary army, unavailingly aided in driving the Spaniards from the country, and in later years, against the armies of the republic, they stubbornly maintained their freedom.

Never Gave Up Freedom. When at peace they enjoyed all the rights and privileges accorded to other citizens of Mexico, but their fealty to tribal relations was never broken. The sovereignty of the "Yaqui country" they conceded to no one. If beaten by armies in the field, they retreated to the mountains of Sonora, and waged unrelenting guerrilla warfare. Quarter was neither asked nor given and the innocent on both sides suffered with the guilty. When exhausted by long struggles there have been intervals of peace, but under the then existing conditions these could not be lasting and the first overt act on the part of Indians or the government led to other bloody and determined struggles.

Prior to the accession of Porfirio Diaz to the presidency of the republic the rights of the Yaquis to levy tribute on the commerce of the Yaqui river was recognized by the government of Mexico, and, but for the invasion of Americans, it is probable that such condition of things would have existed unchallenged today. The "Yaqui country" is rich in natural advantages, in minerals, in agriculture, in home-making. It is probably surpassed by no spot in the great southwest.

Fight for the Valley. To the Anglo-Saxon adventurer the great possibilities afforded by the country could not be overlooked. Old Sam Brannen was given a grant to the valley, but the government could not deliver the goods and 12 died of old age without changing the status quo. Brannen's mantle fell on other shoulders, some American, some Mexican. Deeds of violence that would shame a pagan were perpetrated against the Indians and they relied in like measure. The national as well as state governments became involved and then ensued the long struggle which is about to end.

On May 7 last Luis Iulo, head of the Yaqui nation, asked for a conference by which peace could be arranged. With 90 of his followers, he was met in the Banate mountains by Col. Jose Gonzalez Salas and other officers of the Mexican army. The conference lasted three hours and it is believed to have paved the way to a lasting peace. At first Chief Iulo assumed the aggressive in his demands, but was evidently prepared to waive them as occasion demanded. In the end terms acceptable to both parties were agreed upon.

The Terms of Peace.

These provide unconditional submission of the Yaquis to the authority of the government; that the lives and property of the Indians be respected, and they be protected in all the rights and privileges accorded to Mexican citizens under existing laws, provided, however, that for the time being they must not go north of Tuxtepec; that all arms and ammunition of war in the hands of the Indians be delivered to the military authorities; that emigrants should be sent to the different Yaqui bands, advising them to cease hostilities and deliver up their arms; and that the government provide all necessities for the submitting Indians until such time as work can be provided for them.

Chief Iulo, in expressing himself as satisfied with the terms proposed, said he believed his people would accept them if enough time was given to unite all families and parties so as to present themselves in a body. He fixed June 15 as the date upon which the united people present themselves for ratification of the terms of settlement.

BOY AERONAUT IS DROWNED

DROPS WITH PARACHUTE INTO THE PASSAIC RIVER.

Entangled in Folds of American Flag, Young Frederick L. Wood Meets Death.

New York, June 1.—Entangled in the folds of a large American flag, which he had waved as he made a parachute drop of 2,000 feet from a balloon at Hillside park near Passaic, N. J., late Sunday, Frederick L. Wood, an 18-year-old aeronaut of New Haven, Conn., fell helpless in the Passaic river and was drowned. Up to a late hour the body had not been recovered.

Wood made his ascension at five o'clock in the presence of a thousand persons. As the balloon rose he unfolded an American flag which he waved to the people below. Near Nutley the balloon had risen to a height estimated at 2,000 feet and Wood decided to descend. Cutting loose the rope that held the parachute to the balloon and clutching the rope of his horizontal bar, Wood plunged downwards. Slowly the parachute opened and then with moderate speed continued the descent. Nearing the earth Wood saw that he would probably fall in the Passaic river and waving his flag as a last salute, he prepared for a plunge into the water. It was at this moment while the parachute was only a hundred feet above the river that a puff of air caught the floating flag and wrapped it around Wood's legs. The aeronaut struggled to free himself from its enveloping folds, but failed and with his limbs still bound by the flag, he plunged into the river. He arose to the surface and cried for help, but before the spectators could come to his aid, he sank and was drowned.

SAMUEL WHITLOW FREED.

Jury Finds Him Not Guilty of Murdering May Sapp.

Toia, Kan., June 1.—The jury in the case of Samuel Whitlow, charged with the murder of May Sapp, September 27, 1907, brought in a verdict of not guilty Sunday. The jury was out 36 hours. The first votes were nine to three for acquittal. The negro on the jury was the last man won over for acquittal.

Miss Sapp was the daughter of J. N. Sapp, a wealthy and highly respected farmer of Moran, Kan., and a niece of Col. William Sapp, the widely known Democratic politician. Whitlow had been the school master at Moran, and after Miss Sapp entered the little school an affection sprang up between the two. Even after Whitlow's marriage their relations continued. On the night of September 27, 1907, Miss Sapp left the home of her father at Moran, saying that she was going for a walk. A few minutes later her mother heard a cry from the back yard of the Sapp residence and then the voice of her daughter calling in a distressed tone: "Oh, mother, mother." Rushing into the yard Mrs. Sapp stumbled over the prostrate form of her daughter. The girl's throat had been cut from ear to ear and she died within a few minutes.

The state alleged that Whitlow became tired of Miss Sapp and, making an appointment with her as he had his custom, murdered her. Whitlow set up the plea that he had met Miss Sapp, but that the girl killed herself.

TO RESTORE SENATOR'S SIGHT.

Delicate Operation Planned for T. P. Gore of Oklahoma.

Washington, June 1.—An operation of considerable delicacy is to be performed on Thomas P. Gore, the blind senator from Oklahoma. In the hope of restoring at least partial sight to one of his eyes, Senator Gore, accompanied by his wife, will go to New York and submit to an operation which has been contemplated for some time. An eminent eye specialist there believes it possibly may result in the improvement of the organ to the extent that the senator may dimly distinguish objects. The operation, however, is said to be of such serious nature that if it fails to restore partial sight there never will be any further hope and the senator will have to continue his days in blindness.

"EMPLOYMENT DAY" SUCCEEDS.

Thousands Restored to Pay Rolls in St. Louis and Vicinity.

St. Louis, June 1.—During the last week of May the National Prosperity association carried on a canvass with employers to have June 1 recognized as "Employment day" by the restoration of employees who were laid off because of the recent depression. As the result of that canvass favorable answers were received by the association from several hundred employers in this vicinity, and it is conservatively estimated that 17,500 names have been added to the pay rolls in St. Louis and on the east side of the Mississippi, including East St. Louis and Granite City, comparison being made between the number employed May 1 and the showing of the pay rolls beginning June 1.

In a number of instances employers immediately increased their working forces without waiting for the advent of "Employment day."

FAMILY OF FOUR DROWNS.

Fatal Outing in Celebration of Raising a Mortgage.

Philadelphia, June 1.—An entire family consisting of William Ebelman, aged 38 years, his wife Elizabeth, aged 37, and their two children, Anna, aged 17, and William, aged seven, of West Pennsauken, N. J., were drowned in Pennsauken creek, below Hiverton, N. J., Sunday by the capsizing of a small rowboat.

The family was taking an outing partly in celebration of the fact that the father had just cleared off the mortgage on a home he had purchased.

Flood Cripples Train Service.

Billings, Mont., June 1.—A flood, resulting from a cloudburst in the valley west of Columbus, Mont., swept away a bridge over Deer creek about midnight and carried away more than a mile of Northern Pacific track. Train service into Billings from the west is at a stand still.

One Constable Kills Another.

St. Louis, June 1.—A special from Vermilion, Ill., says Constable Bruce Northrup, 35 years old, was shot to death there Sunday in a pistol duel by Constable Charles Crawford, 21 years old, as the outcome of a quarrel resulting from a friendly wrestling match.

Afghans Invade Persia.

Tehran, June 1.—It is reported that 200 well armed Afghans have made an incursion into Persian territory and have occupied Regan, a town about 180 miles southeast of Kerman.

Train Held Up by Boys.

Great Falls, Mont., June 1.—The hold-up Saturday night of the north-bound Great Northern train at the stock yards, about a mile and a half from this city, was the work of three boys, who now occupy cells in the city jail. A fourth youth, who admits having assisted in planning the hold-up, but took no active part, is also a prisoner. The quartette have made a complete confession to the police.

When Baked Beans Are Baked Beans

Baked beans are baked beans only when they're baked—dry-baked—baked a golden brown, baked mealy, baked until they are nutritious—baked the home way, the only right way.

Beans cooked any other way are not baked beans.

HEINZ Baked Beans

are baked beans in every sense of the word. Not cooked in a soldered can. Not water-logged and soggy like beans that have never seen a dry oven. Every can of HEINZ Baked Beans has the same rich color and flavor, showing how uniformly they are baked. The inside of each tin upon opening is silver-bright, showing the superior tin in which they are put up.

In three different ways—With Tomato Sauce; Plain Pork and Beans (Boston Style); Vegetarian—Without Pork.

Examine a HEINZ Improved Tin. No solder inside. Closed air-tight by crimping. The best tin for the best beans—that's the idea.

SHOCKING MURDER IN PARIS.

Noted Painter and Mother-in-Law Strangled by Robbers.

Paris, June 1.—A sensation has been caused in the art world here by the brutal murder of the distinguished painter, Adolphe Steinhell, and his mother-in-law, who were found strangled Sunday morning in the former's residence in the Rue de Valenciennes, which adjoins the studio of Bismarck Thomas, the American portrait painter.

The house was ransacked of every thing of value. Steinhell's wife, who was found gagged and bound to a bed, declares that the crime was committed by two men and a woman. The latter she believes she recognized as a model who was employed by her husband.

Cleveland at Home Again.

Princeton, N. J., June 1.—Former President Grover Cleveland, who had been ill at Lakewood for some time, was brought to his home here Sunday evening. Mr. Cleveland, accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland and a physician, came from the Pines in an automobile. The journey was made slowly. Members of the family said that Mr. Cleveland stood the trip well and was very little fatigued.

King of Sweden Visits Kaiser.

Berlin, June 1.—King Gustave of Sweden and the queen arrived here Sunday afternoon and were met by the emperor and other members of the royal family. The route to the castle was lined with troops and the royal visitors were greeted enthusiastically all along the way.

Found Dead in Sleeping Car.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 1.—J. F. Hanson, United States consular agent at Nuevitas, was found dead in his berth on a Pullman car in the Union station here Sunday morning. Death was due to heart disease. He was about 42 years old and was on his way to Washington from Chicago.

FIND SLAYER ON RETINA.

Bearded Face in Eye of Woman Murdered at Alton.

Alton, Ill., June 1.—The belief was expressed by Coroner Streopor Sunday that the unidentified woman whose body was found floating in the Mississippi river near here Thursday was murdered. A postmortem examination established the absence of water in the lungs, although the body had evidently been in the water for several weeks, and the neck was broken.

Bolton in the theory that the last glance of a victim upon the murderer may be so vividly impressed as to fix the picture permanently upon the retina, caused Coroner Streopor to have a photograph taken of the retina of one eye of the dead woman. Upon the plate being developed it was asserted by the photographer and the coroner that they could detect the bearded face of a man with a hooked nose and sparse hair. The coroner says he will use the photograph in conducting investigation.

IS INTERESTED IN DR. KOCH'S VISIT TO

To Molokai the Leper Colony Where Brother Joseph Dutton, Once a Resident of Janesville, Lives.

Old soldier friends of Joseph Dutton, Brother Joseph, formerly a clerk in James Sutherland's bookstore before the war and later a member of a Wisconsin regiment, are interested in the recent visit of Dr. Robert Koch, the German bacteriologist, to the leper colony on the island of Molokai. It is here that Brother Joseph is living his solitary life among the incurables who form the little colony. Brother Joseph succeeded Father Damien in his work after having spent some years in a monastery in Kentucky. During the life of the late James Sutherland he wrote many letters to his former employer telling him of his life and his work among the incurables. Recently the Los Angeles Daily Times, published an interesting article on the colony and Brother Joseph. Postmaster M. H. Flint of Los Angeles visited him in 1900 and says the following of his life and labors, which will be of interest to his many former friends and comrades in Janesville.

"Brother Dutton is a wonderful character," said Flint. "I only met him for a few days when I was in the islands in 1900, establishing the postal system, yet he seems like an old and cherished friend. He is absolutely unconscious of the splendid heroism of his life. Possessed of a fine education and gifted with many talents, this lowly brother of the Roman Catholic church has consecrated his life to the good of humanity. He can never leave his post or associate freely with his equals. His is a living death and perhaps his will be that of other leper workers who have contracted the dread disease."

Postmaster Flint has received a long letter from Brother Dutton. Brother Dutton succeeded to the work begun by Father Damien and it was in his arms that the aged priest gave up his life. He is in charge of the Baldwin Home for Lepers, which is beautifully located in a tiny valley by the sea. In his letter Brother Dutton writes: "The construction and management of this home will doubtless round out my life. I helped Father Damien in testing the work, which began in 1885 by fixing up two temporary homes, which were a simple cluster of huts close to his home and mine. As the utility of the work was established, the Board of Health authorized me to go on with the construction and my own plans were adopted."

"When it has all done the members of the board paid me a visit. They were pleased and rather astonished. They gave me so much praise that it made me ashamed. That was in 1894. The sisters helped me to carry on the new home, which was built with funds given by Mr. Baldwin, until the following year when four brothers came from Europe. The work has been carried on without a setback. Various boards of health have from time to time in more recent years done much for the place."

"Kalaniana' was the main settlement for many years. The offices, shops and warehouses were located at Kalaniana, the steamer landing. The present Board of Health has been active in improving Kalaniana, putting up many buildings which were much finer than any there before."

"But still our place here, the old place we must call it now, has not lost any of its charm. It is still called a beauty spot. I have never been away from the home since April, 1893, when I went to Kalaupapa to fix up Father Damien's effects for shipment to Belgium, as I was one of the executors of the estate. Have not been away from the leper settlement since I arrived in July, 1886. So the place has a charm for me. Every scrap of nature's handiwork is an inspiration, and so is every duty, every incident and every accident."

"Dr. Koch's visit may result in his finding some method of curing the disease. The telegraphic dispatch from Honolulu describing his visit says: 'Dr. Koch was taken to Molokai as the guest of the German consul, William Potentiauer, on the Chilean steamer Ke An Hon, especially chartered for the trip, and was accompanied by Dr. Walter Heyckerhoff, in charge of the federal leprosyarium; Dr. L. E. Cofer, president of the United States marine hospital service at Honolulu, and H. Woelke, Chilean consul here.'"

"Dr. Koch made a most careful examination of the settlement, taking many notes on what he saw and questioning many of the unfortunates, but was reticent in expressing himself except on the general conduct and condition of the camp. As to the scientific treatment of the dread disease, whether a permanent cure might be discovered as a result of experiments now being made by scientists, he declined to be quoted."

"The lepers had no notice of the coming of the scientist, and were taken by surprise. They delighted in welcoming distinguished visitors with a public gathering and speeches, and felt chagrined that they were not prepared to show these attentions to the party. They soon learned Dr. Koch's identity, however. Dr. Koch took notes on everything he saw, and made a thorough inquiry into individual and hopeless cases."

DEALERS IN OIL NOT POSTING TESTS

Deputy Oil Inspector Conrad Receives Letter from State Supervisor Calling for Enforcement of Law.

Charles B. Conrad, deputy oil inspector of Rock county which comprises the 10th district, has received from Edward L. Tracey, state supervisor of inspectors, a circular letter calling attention to some matters which will be of especial interest to grocers, hardware dealers, and garage proprietors. The writer complains that Sec. 1212, of the laws, which requires dealers to exhibit in a conspicuous place a sign announcing and proclaiming to all intending purchasers the tests both as to the explosive and illuminating qualities of the kerosene oil and gasoline they are handling, is being violated in nearly every city of the state. He also avers that gasoline is being stored and delivered to consumers in cans and packages not painted and stenciled as required by Sec. 2, Chap. 436, of the laws of 1901; and that 4,000 barrels of unpainted oil have been shipped into this state and sold to consumers. The deputy inspector is requested to make a careful investigation of these alleged conditions at once with a view to starting prosecutions with a view to the retail price per gallon of kerosene and gasoline in the larger cities of his district. Mr. Conrad says that he will have blank placards for the tests printed and distributed immediately, at his own expense, in order to forestall, if possible, any prosecutions on that score.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, June 1, 1868.—When the business of the police court entirely, by the appointment of his special police for Sunday service. It being difficult to obtain whiskey, there was naturally no dancing, and the police court was a quiet affair. It was very severe in the state of Nevada which seems to have been the principal seat of the disturbance. Four heavy shocks were felt at Fort Churchill and Virginia City, but no damage was done. At Virginia City large buildings were rocked and everybody rushed out of doors. The pumps in the Savage mine stopped and the miners thought that a cave-in had occurred.

Washington, June 1.—A letter was received at the Treasury Department on Saturday evening enclosing two one thousand dollar notes. It was postmarked New York, May 29, but contained no evidence whatever that could lead to the discovery of the sender. The numbers of the enclosed notes were carefully cut out, and the address, namely, Treasury Department, had been taken from a newspaper and pasted on an envelope. The interior contained the words cut from a former newspaper paragraph in a previously announced case: "This money rightfully belongs to the United States." The notes will be placed to the credit of the Treasury Department.

General Schofield took possession of the war department today. The President accompanied him and remained a few minutes. Grant subsequently had a short interview with the Secretary.

EIGHT BISHOPS ARE CONSECRATED

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE AT THE METHODIST CONFERENCE.

GREAT CROWD IS PRESENT

Bishop Henry W. Warren, Acting as Chief Consecrator, Places His Hands on Dr. W. F. Anderson's Head.

Baltimore, Md., June 1.—Perhaps the most impressive moment of the current general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was Sunday afternoon when Bishop Henry W.
Warren, placing his hands upon the head of Rev. Dr. William F. Anderson of New York, pronounced the solemn words that made the kneeling minister a bishop of the church.

The Lyric, in which the consecration service was held, was crowded to the very limit of its capacity with delegates to the conference, relatives and friends of the bishop-elect and other interested spectators. The arrangements, like the ceremonies of which they were to be the setting, were simple. On each side of the stage were placed four small tables, each with a book and three chairs.

Long before the hour set for the consecration service the great crowd had taken possession of the big auditorium and a service of song was held. In the rooms reserved for the use of the bishops a procession was formed and promptly at four o'clock it moved out upon the stage. It was led by the bishop-elect, Rev. Dr.
William F. Anderson of New York,
John L. Nelson of Berea, O.; William A. Quayle of Chicago, Charles L.
Smith of Pittsburgh, William S. Lewis of Sioux City, Ia.; Edwin H. Hughes of Greenacres, Ind.; Robert McIntyre of Los Angeles, Cal., and Frank M.
Hiel of Washington, each accompanied by his two precentors.

Following these came Bishop Warren and Goddard and the other consecrat-ing bishops, the first named as senior bishop presiding and acting as chief consecrator.

All present joined in the recitation of the Creed, Bishops Goddard, Moore and Warren offered prayers, the collect was read by Bishop Walden of Cincinnati, the Epistle by Bishop Mallahan of Astoria, Ore., and the Gospel by Bishop Cranston of Washington, these being interspersed with music.

Examined and Consecrated.
The candidates for ordination were examined by Bishop Warren, who pronounced them eligible, and this was followed by the declarations and oaths of the candidates. Then, after another brief prayer, Bishop Warren pronounced the words of consecration over Rev. Dr. Anderson and other bishops performed the same office for the other candidates. A prayer for the new-made bishops by Bishop Bashford of Shanghai, China, a hymn and a benediction delivered by Bishop Nelson, and the ceremonies were at an end.

ALLENTOWN, PA., IS SHAKEN.

Citizens Are Terrified by a Severe Earthquake Shock.

Allentown, Pa., June 1.—All Allentown was thrown into a state of excitement at 12:42 p. m. Sunday by what is believed to have been an earthquake shock. The shock was severe enough to rock buildings, rattle windows, chatter crockery, tumble down two or three chimneys and upset small children.

People rushed out of their homes in great alarm and mothers carried out their children in fear that their homes were about to fall. The shaking was felt all over the city but not beyond its limits nor in any of the suburbs. In the western part of the city, where the shock was most apparent, the people heard a muffled sound. Rumors spread that a powder mill five miles from Allentown had blown up and that boilers at various manufacturing plants had exploded.
But all these reports were false, leaving the sole conclusion that it was an earthquake. This section experienced such a seismic disturbance on a Sunday 24 years ago.

CURRENCY COMMISSION MEETS.

Senator Aldrich Made Chairman—
Great Work Is Planned.

Washington, June 1.—The currency commission appointed by Vice-President Parbanks and Speaker Cannon under the terms of the Aldrich-Vreeland bill, held its first meeting Sunday, and while the meeting was only for the purpose of organization, there was a general discussion of plans, and it can be stated that the outline submitted by Senator Aldrich is perfectly by the work of the commission, the country will be given the benefit of such a thorough investigation and complete exposition of currency and banking as it has never before received.

The commission organized by electing Senator Aldrich chairman and Representative Vreeland vice-chairman, thus recognizing in the two executive officers the co-authors of the law under which the commission was appointed.

Kansas City, Mo., June 1.—Mrs.
Mildred Settle, aged 18 years, of Amurilla, Tex., committed suicide
here Sunday by drinking carbolic acid.
No reason is known for the act. Mrs.
Settle was a daughter of Richard L.
Lang, said to be a wealthy real estate dealer of Fort Worth, Tex. Accompanied by her husband, Harry Settle, she came here to visit the latter's mother.

Chapter Seven

SOPHY'S enemies were at work, and Sophy was helpless. Such is the history of the next twelve months. Mantis was installed medium now, and the revelations came.
But they came slow, vague, and full of faltering. Something was wrong. Pharo confessed carefully, what could it be, for surely Lady Meg by her faith (and it may be added, her liberality) deserved well of the unseen powers?
He hinted at the evil eye, but without express accusation. Under "the influence" Mantis would speak of "the majesty one," but Mantis when asked thought Mantis do Gruché a charming young lady? It was old and mysterious. Pharo could make nothing of it.
He, too, thought Mantis. Sophy believed that this pleasant informality of description—quite Jewish and entirely devoted to Lady Meg, only unhappily so irresponsible to the unseen, a little unpleasantly it might be. But what would you? The young had no need to think of death or the dead. Was it to be expected, then, that Mantis, Sophy would be a good subject or take much interest in the work, great and wonderful though it might be?

The pair of rogues did their work well and quietly, so quietly that nothing of it would be known were it not that they quarreled later on over the rights of this and other transactions, and Mantis, in the witness box at Lill, used her memory and her tongue freely. "The plan now was to get rid of the young lady," she said plainly.
"Pharo feared her power over my lady and that my lady might leave her all the money. Pharo hated the young lady because she would have nothing to say to him and told him plainly that she thought him a charlatan. She had courage, yes! But if she would have joined in with him—why, then, into the streets with me! I knew that well enough, and Pharo knew I knew it. So I hated her, too, fearing that some day she and he would make up their differences, and I—that for me!
Yes, that was how we were, M. to President." Her lucid exposition elicited a polite compliment from Mantis. President, and we also are obliged to her.
But Sophy was headless. She showed afterward that she could fight well for what she loved well and that with her an eager heart made a strong hand.
Her heart was not in this fight. The revelation of mad Lady Meg's true motives for taking her up may well have damped a gratitude otherwise becoming in Sophy Gruché transplanted to Sophy de Gruché. Yet the gratitude remained. She fought for Lady Meg—for her sanity and some return of sanity in her proceedings. In so fighting she fought against herself, for Lady Meg was very mad now. For herself she did not fight. Her heart and her thoughts were elsewhere. The schemes in the blue do the drama occupied her hardly more than the clash of principles, the efforts of a falling dynasty, the struggles of rising freedom, the struggle and the effort of the great city and the effort of the great city.

For she was young,
and the lord of youth had come to visit her in his shower of golden promises. The days were urged for her no more of the fawning advances
or the spiteful insinuations of Pharo than by the horde of an uneasy emperor or the ingenious experiments in reconciling contradictions wherein his ministers were engaged. For her, the days lived or lived not as she met or failed to meet Casimir de Savres. It was the season of her first love. Yet, with all the joy, the shadow of doubt is over it.
It seems not perfect. The delight is in receiving, not in giving. His letters to her, full of reminiscences of their meetings and talks, are shaded with doubt and eloquent of insecurity. She was no more than a girl in years, but in some ways her mind was precociously developed—her ambition was spreading
like will growing wings. Casimir's constant tone of deference, almost of adulation, marks in part the man, in part
the convention in which he had been
bred, but it marks, too, the suppliant.
To the last he is the weaker, not the
lover, and at the end of his ecstasy lies
the risk of despair. For her part, she often speaks of him afterward and always with the tenderest affection. She never ceased to carry with her where-
ever she went the bundle of his letters,
tied with a scrap of ribbon and inscribed with a date. But there is one reference worthy of note to her inner-
most sentiments toward him, to the
true state of her heart as she came to realize it and by. "I love him, but I didn't grow into my feelings," she says. Brief and almost accidental as
the utterance is, it is full of significance, but it is light is thrown back. It is the statement of how she came to
know how she had been toward him,
not of how in those happy days she
seemed to herself to be.

He knew about Gruché. He had been told by a eunuch superiority of female friendliness, by Lady Meg, cloaking suspicious malignity under specious politeness; by Mantis, with impertinent and intrusive address; by Marie Zerkovitch in the sheer impossibility of containing within herself any secret which had the bad fortune to be

Intrusted to her. Sophy's own confession, made with incredible difficulty, she hated the name, so full of mockery.
It happened at the Calvary at Fontainebleau, whether they had made a day's and night's excursion under the escort of Marie Zerkovitch and a student friend of hers from the Quartier Latin. These two they had left behind sipping beer at a restaurant facing the chateau. On the eminence which commands the white little town dropped and the old forest, over against the red roofs of the palace lying in richness with the turning leaves, in sight of a view in its own kind unsurpassed.
In its own charm unequalled, Sophy broke the brutal truth which was to end the infatuation of the head of a house old as St. Louis.

"It's bad to pronounce, is it?" asked Casimir, smiling and touching her hand. "Ah, well, good or bad, I couldn't pronounce it, so to me it is nothing."
"They'd all say it was terrible—a misalliance."
"I fear only one voice on earth saying that."
"And the fraud I am—De Gruché?" She caught his hand tightly. Never before had it occurred to her to defend or to excuse the transparent fiction.
"I know stars fall," he said, with his pretty gravity,
"not too grave."
"I wish that
they may rise
to their own
height again
and I rise with them."
The sun sank
behind the horizon. A gentle
afterglow of salmon pink
rested over the
palace and city;
the forest turned to a frame of
smoky, brown-
ish black. Casimir
waved a
hand toward it
and laughed
merrily.

"Before we were it was;
after we are it
shall be." I sound as old as Scripture!
It has been old masters and great mistresses! Saving the proprieties, weren't you Montespan or Pompadour?"
"De la Valliere?" she laughed. "Or Maitenon?"
"For good or evil, neither! Do I hurt you?"
"No; you make me think, though," answered Sophy. "Why?"
"They niggled at virtue or at vice.
You don't niggel. Neither did Montespan nor Pompadour."
"And so I am to be—Marquise de—"
"Higher, higher!" he laughed. "Mlle.
de Marceuil!"
"It is war, then—soon—you think?"
She turned to him with a sudden tension.

He pointed a Frenchman's eloquent forefinger to the dark mass of the chateau, whose chimneys rose now like gloomy interloping marks to an unresponsive, darkened sky. "It is there now—the emperor! Perhaps he walks in his garden by the round pond—thinking, dreaming, balancing."
"Flourishing balls in the air, as con-jurors do!"
"Yes, my star."
"And if he misses the first?"
"He'll seek applause by the second.
And the second, I think, would be war."

"And you would go?"
"To what other end do I love the body of the red star—alas, I can't see it—save to bring her glory?"
"That's French," said Sophy, with a laugh. "Wouldn't you rather stay with me and be happy?"
"Who speaks to me?" he cried, springing to his feet. "Not you!"
"No, no," she answered. "I have no fear! What is it, Casimir, that drives us on?"

"Hush! You! You, too?"
"It's not a woman's part, is it?"
He caught her round the waist, and she allowed his clasp, but she saw how his mind was precociously
developed—her ambition was spreading
like will growing wings. Casimir's constant tone of deference, almost of adu-
lation, marks in part the man, in part
the convention in which he had been
bred, but it marks, too, the suppliant.
To the last he is the weaker, not the
lover, and at the end of his ecstasy lies
the risk of despair. For her part, she
often speaks of him afterward and always with the tenderest affection. She
never ceased to carry with her where-
ever she went the bundle of his letters,
tied with a scrap of ribbon and inscribed with a date. But there is one
reference worthy of note to her inner-
most sentiments toward him, to the
true state of her heart as she came to
realize it and by. "I love him, but I
didn't grow into my feelings," she
says. Brief and almost accidental as
the utterance is, it is full of significance, but it is light is thrown back. It
is the statement of how she came to
know how she had been toward him,
not of how in those happy days she
seemed to herself to be.

"If all life were at evening at Fontainebleau—a fine evening at Fontainebleau!—she murmured in the low clearness which marked her voice.
"Mightn't it be?"
"With war? And with what drives
us on?"

He sighed, and his sigh puzzled her.
"Oh, well," she cried, "at least you know I'm Sophy Gruché, and my father was as mean as the man who opens your lodge gate."
The sky had gone a blue black. A single star solemnly announced the coming night.

"And his daughter high as the hopes that beckon me to my career?"
"You're a wonderful way of talking," smiled Sophy Gruché—simple Essex in contrast with Paris at that instant.
"You'll be my wife, Sophy?"
"I don't think Lady Meg will keep me long. Pharo's working hard, so Marie Zerkovitch declares. I should bring you a lot of 2,500 francs!"
"Do you love her?"

The old question rang clear in the still air. Who has not heard it of women or uttered it of men? Often so easy, sometimes so hard. When all is right save one thing, or when all is wrong save one thing, then it is hard to answer—and may have been hard to ask. With Casimir there was no doubt beyond the doubt of the answer. Sophy

You Need Food

Don't diet yourself when the stomach is weak. That robs you of nourishment. Treat a weak stomach like a lame ankle. Rest it. Let Kodol, for a little time, do its work for it. Please note our guarantee.

Don't try to make the stomach do what it can't do. Don't stimulate it; don't drive it to action. It is like whipping a tired horse.

Let it rest, as you would a lame ankle. And,
like the lame ankle, the stomach will cure itself.
In indigestion the stomach lining is irritated.
And the undigested food, by becoming hard, irritates the lining. That is the cause of the pain.
So long as that irritation is allowed to continue,
there is no hope of curing the stomach.

Some find that they can't digest all food. So they limit themselves to the food that they can digest.

That means partial starvation. The needs of the body call for variety in food. One cannot diet without starving some part, without losing some needed nourishment.

Nourishment will do more than anything else to correct the weakness. It is vital that you supply it.

The right way is this: Eat what you need of the food that you want. Then let Kodol, for a little time, do the digesting. Nature will do the rest.

You will say, perhaps, that you have tried digesters before. But you are mistaken.

You may have tried papain, but papain digests only albumen. You may have tried any of the numerous digesters which depend almost solely on papain. They digest but part of the food.

Kodol alone digests all of the food. It is the only way to do all that the strongest digestive organs can do.

The results are immediate. Kodol is liquid, like the digestive juices. Its action begins as soon as it enters the stomach. Even before that, for in the mouth it starts the flow of saliva.

You don't want to always depend on artificial digesters. We understand that. But you must help the stomach while it needs help. Else it will always need it.

Let the stomach rest for a time, just as you would any organ that needs to recuperate. That is all that is necessary and all that you can do.

But the rest must be complete. Half-way measures will not prove satisfactory. You must supply all the digestive elements, not part of them.
Kodol alone can do that.

This is easily proved. Try Kodol, then try something else. You can easily note the difference.

Some digestive elements require the liquid form.
They must be preserved in glass. In any other form, it is quite impossible to do what Kodol does.

Our Guarantee

Kodol will act in any case, under any condition, on any sort of food. This is so certain that we guarantee it. Buy one large bottle, and ask your druggist for the signed guarantee. If you are not satisfied, take the empty bottle back with the warrant, and your druggist will return your money.

This offer is made on the large bottle only, and to but one in a family. That bottle will amply prove how needless it is to suffer and you will never forget it.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C.
DeWitt & Co., Chicago. The $1.00 bottle contains 2½ times as much as the 50c bottle.

stated, and in the condition. The present seemed perfect. Only an unknown future cried to her through the falling night.

"I'll win glory for you!" he cried.

"The emperor will fight!"

"You're no emperor's man!" she mocked.

"Yes, while he means France. I'm for anybody who means France." For a moment serious, the next he kisses her hand merrily. "Or for anybody who'll give me a wreath, a medal, a toy to bring home to her I love."

"You're very fascinating," Sophy confessed.

It was not the word. Casimir fell from his exaltation. "It's not love, that of yours," he said.

"No—I don't think. You might make it love. Oh, how I talk beyond my rights!"

"Beyond your rights? Impossible!
May I go on trying?"

He saw Sophy's smile dimly through the gloom. From it he glanced to the dying gleam of the white houses dropped among the trees, to the dull mass of the ancient home of history and kings. Dark back he came to the living, elusive, half seen smile.

"Can you stop?" said Sophy.

He raised his hat from his head and stopped to kiss her hand.

"Nor would nor could," said he—"in the warmth of life or the cold hour of death!"

"No, not if you die, it's gloriously!"
The hour carried her away. "Casimir, I wish I were sure!"

The spirit of his race filled his reply.
"You would be dull?"

"No—I—I want you to kiss my cheek!"

"May I salute the star?"

"But it's no promise!"

"It's better."

"My dear, I—I'm very fond of you."

"That's all?"

"Enough for tonight. What's his thinking of down there?"

"The emperor? I'm not so much as sure he's there really. Somebody said he had started for St. Cloud this morning."

"Pretend he's there!"

"Then, of anything except how many men die for what he wants."

"Or of how many women weep?"

Her reply set a new light to his passion. "You'd weep?" he cried.

"Oh, I suppose so." The answer was half a laugh, half a sob.

"But not too much! No more than the slightest dimness to the glowing star!"

Sophy laughed in a tremulous key.
Her body shook. She held her hands in his. "No more, no more! Surely Marie and the student are bored!
Isn't it supper time? Oh, Casimir, if I were worthy, if I were sure! What's ahead of us? Must we go back? Tonight, up here, it all seems so simple!
Does he mean war? Do down there?
And you'll fight?" She looked at him for an instant. He was close to her.
She thrust him away from her. "Don't fight thinking of me," she said.

"How otherwise?" he asked.

She tossed her head impatiently. "I don't know—but—but Pharo makes me afraid. He—he says that things I love die."

The young soldier laughed. "That leaves him pretty safe," said he.

She put her arm through his, and they walked down. It had been a night to be forgotten only when all is lost. Yet she went from him unpledged.

NEW MONEY LAW; CONGRESS QUILTS

SENATE PASSES THE CURRENCY BILL AFTER FILIBUSTER.

THE PRESIDENT SIGNS IT

Both Houses Then Rush Through the Remaining Business and Adjourn Just Before Midnight.

Washington, June 1.—At 4:25 Saturday afternoon, after having been in operation since noon Friday, the filibuster against the currency bill went to pieces, the conference report was adopted and the measure was signed by President Roosevelt, who gave the pen with which he wrote his name to Representative Wilson of Chicago.

Senator Gore, the blind orator from Oklahoma, had the floor when the filibuster came to an end, having talked two hours and ten minutes. It had been arranged among the trio of objectors that Senator Stone was to follow Gore and later on Mr. La Follette would make another effort to break into the ring. For once at least "Gum Shoe Bill" was not right on the job. No one seemed to know just where he was putting in his time, but the Republican leaders were on the alert and seized the opportunity.

Aldrich Engineers the Coup.
Senator Aldrich, the resourceful Republican leader, was attending strictly to business, and as soon as Mr. Gore concluded his remarks he secured the floor and immediately moved to proceed to a vote.

La Follette and Stone were both out of the chamber, and there was nothing in the way. Earlier in the day, with characteristic foresight, Mr. Aldrich had provided that the vote should be taken by yeas and nays. A roll call was actually in progress before La Follette or Stone could be notified, and there was then no way of preventing a vote.

The folly of the whole filibustering proceeding was sufficiently shown when the currency bill was passed in the senate by a vote of 43 to 22.

The Democrats voted solidly against it, and with them were only five Republicans, La Follette, Brown, Borah, Bourne and Heyburn. Senator Kitttridge and one or two other Republicans were paired against it, but they did not go on the record.

Congress Adjourns.

The first session of the sixtieth congress adjourned Saturday night at 11:50. Legislative work ended early in the evening and while President Roosevelt was engaged in signing the last list of bills, the senate took quiet recesses and the house indulged in the customary levity in the line of singing, flag waving and speechmaking.

The sudden action on the part of the senate in adopting the conference report on the currency bill and thus sending that measure to completion, served to galvanize both branches of congress into a swift working gait that brought final adjournment up to a matter of a few hours.

The house quickly swept aside the consideration of small, unobjectionable bills, and resolutions that had been occupying its time, and brought the omnibus public building bill—the piece de resistance among the legislative features of the session—to the fore.

The regulation 40 minutes' debate and the filibuster roll call demanded by the Democrats were held, and the great pork measure reached its final passage. There were inward prayers of thanks all over the place.
